Hi there,

In response to the university's decision to extend spring break, cancel events and encourage social distancing to minimize the spread of COVID-19, we are offering a series of online events in order for students to complete their Scholars Forum requirement for the Spring 2020 semester. Due to the circumstances, we will be reducing the number of required events from 12 to 8 for this semester.

In order to fulfill your Scholars Forum attendance requirement for the semester, you may complete any of the events in this Google form to get to your 8 required events. Each event included on this form counts for 2 attendance credits. You may submit the form as many times as needed in order to complete your requirements. In order to complete the events, simply follow the instructions for each event. Each event features a video or article for your review followed by a reflection paper.

If you have already completed 8 Scholars Forum events this semester, no further action is required from you at this time. To be sure, please check your attendance in Moodle (full instructions for checking attendance can be found here).

You can complete these events in any order and at any time before April 23 in order to receive credit. Due to the nature of this process and the changes on campus, it may take longer than normal to process your attendance. Please be patient as we work to finalize this process.

If you have any questions, please contact your USP advisor.
